Scared To Faith (Paperback)

By D. Valerie Opher

AUTHORHOUSE, United States, 2006. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. SCARED TO FAITH highlights some of Valerie Opher's key life experiences as an African-American woman who has worked in not-for-profit as well as for-profit organizations in Corporate America. To be the only and sometimes first African-American woman in several leadership and management positions presented Valerie Opher with many racial and political challenges that included the following: A racial attack by Caucasians that was mentioned on Fox 45 Ten O clock news in Baltimore, Maryland; being called a refugee by an African-American woman who happened to be her boss in Charlotte, North Carolina; being asked: Who do you think you are, the Rosa Parks of Wilmington, NC by a Vice-President of a local hospital; and having her life threatened while employed as CEO of a community health center in North Carolina. While employed by a Fortune 500 company, Valerie Opher was asked to tell the other four Black members of a team of 100+ persons not to sit together, because it makes the rest of the team uncomfortable. How do persons of color in Corporate America maintain and honor our identity when we...
